A DISAGREEING JURY.

NO VERDICT IN THE TYLER CASE. The Jury Out Twenty-three Hours-They Fail to Agree and are Discharged-Con-tinued Illness of the Accused—He Has Two More Hemorrhages—His Condition Critical.

The serious and sudden illness of Wm. Tyler. indicted for forgery, at the City Hall, last Thurs-day afternoon, has caused increased interest to become manifested in the case, and it was hoped by many that a verdict would be returned in his favor. The physical condition of the young man was such on Thursday night that his family and most intimate friends expressed the opinion that a higher than earthly power would soon intervene, and ere 'many hours clapsed he would be wene, and ere 'many hours elapsed he would be rummoned before another judgment seat to render an account of his stewardship; that it mattered not what decision this jury might reach, as the verdict could not effect him but little fat all, and his situation was such that his thoughts should be transferred to the sacred duty of preparing a soul that might, at a moment, be called before its Master. After being removed to the home of his father, in Georgetown, Thursday night, he again suffered

A RECURRENCE OF THE REMORRHAGE ATTACK. A RECURENCE OF THE REMORBIAGE ATTACE, which yesterday morning was followed by still another. These left him very weak, and the physicians pronounced his condition exceedingly precarious, if not entirely hopeless. His father remained by him during the day, while the brother, Dr. Bowie Tyler, came as the representative to the court-house.

Dr. Bowie Tyler, came as the representative to the court-house.

When his Honor convened the daily session be concluded, unless the jury agreed, not to send for them before noon. He was exceedingly anxious to obtain a verdict from them, and thought the serious circumstances that had so recently been thrown about the case warranted him in his efforts to secure a termination of the trial by a positive decision for or against the defendant.

At 1:40 p. m., immediately after the recess, all of the counsel having been notified and taken seats in the court-room, where a number of friends had also gathered, the court directed that the jury be brought down from their concultation room. When they came in and were seated Mr. Sparrow, the clerk, inquired if they HAD AGREED UPON A VERDICT.

Mr. Miller, foreman, replied that they had not. His Honor then questioned them as to the like His Honor then questioned them as to the inke-lihood of their agreeing.

Mr. Miller said that they had done everything possible to reach an agreement. They had thor-oughly canvassed the law and the evidence, and ke, in his own mind, was satisfied that there was no possibility of coming to an agreement.

His Henor inquired if there was anything as to the law which they desired to be enlightened upon. the law which they desired to be very upon.

Mr. Miller replied that he thought the jury theroughly understood the evidence and the law. Mr. McGrill, a juror, said that the question on which a conclusion hinged was as to the weight to be given the tentimony of the experts.

Mr. Miller said that it was true that one or two of the jurors were in favor of basing their judgment on the medical testimony, he regretted to say, and that had done much to cause

THE DISAGREEMENT BETWEEN THEM. Mr. Merrick said that in view of the remarks made by the juryman, he would ask the Court to enlighten the jury on those points. He did not ask that the jury be forced into a verdlet, but simply that they be enlightened, and they might then perhaps come to an agreement.

His Honor then instructed the jury on this point, saying that be had taken particular pains to explain the character of the testimony coming from experts and the weight which must be attached to it. He did not mean to say that it should have no weight, but it was competent evidence, should be considered and they should weigh it. But the testimony of the most experienced experts should not overwhelm the judgment of a jury. He would, not consider the jury was transcending its duty if they gave some weight to the testimony of a physician. The ordinary physician would not be enfitted to the same degree of consideration as an expert who had made insanity his business and study for life. A witness, when the defense is insanity, called upon to express his opinion, as spines. made by the juryman, he would ask the Court !

A FOSITION OF VERY GRAVE RESPONSIBILITY.

The ordinary physician when describing the actions of a party, and is to be followed by one who has made insanity a life time study, and who is to base his opinion on such testimony should be extremely cautious in delivering his testimony so as to avoid error. A witness like Dr. Nichols, who had devoted his life to this subject, and has a reputation well-known throughout the country, whe is conscientious, and has no disposition to turn an insane man loose on the community is entitled to much consideration. The opinion of such an expert is entitled to more consideration than the experience of an ordinary physician who makes no specialty a study. His Honor here read from Curtis on insanity, and remarked that he did not know anything further he could say on the subject. It was exceedingly important that this case should terminate with a verdict, more so on account of the precarious condition of the prisoner. He would ask them to retire once more, and see if they could not come to an agreement.

While he had remarked that it was necessary to have a verdict at all hazards, he did not wish to coerce the jury into an agreement; but if, after retiring, deliberating over the case, and eving it to coerce the jury into an agreement; but if, after retiring, deliberating over the case, and giving it suitable and reasonable fattention, they fall to reach an understanding,

HE WOULD RECALL AND DISCRARGE THEM. but hoped that by this final consultation they would agree upon a verdict.

The jury once more retired to their room.

At 146 o'clock they again entered the court-room, and in response to a question from his Honor the foreman stated that it was impossible for them.

for them to agree.

He then directed the panel to be discharged.

Upon consulting with some of the members it was ascertained that they stood, at the time of

Among the numerous entertainments in preparation this season, for charitable enterprises of various nature, that to be given at Curtis school building, in Georgetown, on Wednesday evening sext, in aid of St. John's parisa, possesses the feature of novely. Offenbach's charming and wilty opera, the "Rose of Auvergue," is in rehearsal, and will be produced with eleborate seenery and orchestra. The participants are Miss Cocke, daughter of ex-Gov. Cooke: Mr. S. G. Young, the baritone, and Mr. John Pugh, the talented tenor of St. Aloysius church. All of these are well and favorably known in our-city, and their services are always available when the calls of charity demand their talents. Miss Cocke possesses a voice of rare merit—flexible, pure and true. She is likewise an amateur actress of great ability, as her friends, who have witnessed her in private theatricals, will attest. Mr. Young's burtone is well known by all, and appreciated, evidently, judging from the numerous calls made upon him for help. Mr. John Pugh has many admirers, and those who have heard him once always wish a repetition. Altogether the combination of talent for this performance is one not cary to be found elsewhere. COMMISSIONER DUELL'S DEPARTURE. Patent Attorneys Express their Regrets at His Resignation—To Which the Judge Feelingly Replies. Yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock a number of rominent patent attorneys of this city assembled at the Patent Office for the purpose of expressing to Judge Duell, late Commissioner of Patents, their sincere regrets at his sudden resignation. A brief meeting was held in room No. 1, at which brief meeting was held in room No. 1, at which Mr. J. M. Blanchard was chosen chairman. After taking the chair he announced to the assemblage the object of the meeting, and spoke in terms of regret at the going out of Judge Dueil.

On motion of Mr. Prindle Mr. Fenwick was deputized to be spokesman, and the body then repaired to the Commissioner's room, where that gentleman was engaged in writing. Entering and arranging themselves .cound the room, the attorneys removed their hats and Mr. Fenwick, stepping forward, made the following

ADDRESS:

MR. COMMISSIONER: We, representing the patent attorneys of the District, have assembled here to express our deepest regret at your resignation siter so short a stay in our midst. We stand by no politics in this matter, but as gentlemen of one profession declare ourselves sorry at your action. We have in all things found you impartial and a man of ability, and one who on all occasions commanded our utmost respect. Sincerely we hope that your future will be prosperous and happy, and we deeply deplore your resignation.

IN REPLY

IM HEFLY

GENTLEMEN: Sincerely I thank you for this hearty testimental of your friendship, which I appreciate very much. Since my coming here, some fincen months ago, when I had but very little experience with patent law, I have endeavered to perform my duties promptly and impartially, and I am extremely gratified at the visit of the patent attorners, who will bear testimeny to having properly exercised the functions of the effice under my control. Wherever you are in the future my best wishes will attend you and your efforts. In leaving you I have much cause for regret, and can only show my appreciation for your kindexpressions by thanking you again. The speaker shook hands all around, and the visitors retired. It is said that the object of Judge Duell's leaving is for the propose of beceming a member of a prominent law firm in New York.

An Interesting Paninhlet. A very comprehensive statement of the case between the Presidential candidates has been arranged by Mr. A. W. Hart, of the District bar. The pamphlet contains also quite an ingenious compilation of the statutes of the respective States upon the various model questions, and is an interesting book. Just at the time when there are so many positive yet opposing theories respecting the Presidential muddle, is cannot fail to receive satisfactory attention.

Mr. Hickox proceeded, with the aid of a map of Asia Minor and pictures of the utensits and relice discovered, to give a most interesting account of Dr. Schlismann's explorations, speaking in an easy, colloquial style, enlivened by humorous observations, and with searcely any reference to his notes. The lecture occupied about three quarters of an hour, and at its close the expression of delight was general and the only regret that it was not longer. After a duet by Miss Mygatt and Mr. Pearson the chairs were removed and an hour spent in social intercourse, Miss Mygatt favoring the company with a vocal solo.

UNRULY BOARDERS. Result of Getting the Softest Spot-A Tramp

Roughly Handled. Last night towards midnight, the weather having grown colder, tramps were compelled to seek warm quarters and more comfortable beds than a park bench or a coal bin. Such being the case the station houses generally were well patronized and the lodging house crowded. Among the dis-tinguished visitors was John H. Hollingshead, who called at the Fifth precinct station and was there shown to a warm cell. Feeling tired, he se-lected a nice soft spot on the brick floor and was soon sound asleep. Later, two other strangers John Welsh and James Mitchell, called and, after John Welsh and James Mitchell, called and, after registering their names, were shown to the cell occupied by Hollingshead, who was moring lustily. Hall an heur later Station-keeper Duibols was startled by hearing ories of nurder issuing from the lodgers' cell, and to rush to the spot was the work of a moment. Arriving there he found the two late arrivals in the act of assaulting Hollingshead, whose nose was bleeding and right eye had been entirely closed for the night. The assailants were locked up in nother cell and the charge of assault and battery preferred against them, and to-day Judge Snell will have the pleasure of interviewing them. Hollingshead was very painfally injured.

THE ICE AT BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 29.—The condition of the river and bay, from the city down, is much improved, and vessels are now beginning to arrive that have been ice-bound for some days. Unless it should freeze again, there is much hope that navigation can be entirely resumed in a day or two. The steamers all got in on time resterday from York river and NorJolk, and report that the prospect is very encouraging.

THE NEW LIGHTS.

THE NEW LIGHTS.

Captain James Harper, of the steamer Theodore Weens, which returned to Baltimore yesterday morning, after an unsuccessful attempt to come up the Potomae, speaks very highly of the great improvement to night navigation on the river by the completion of the new light-bouse at Mathias Point and the beacons near the same place. NOTICE TO CAPTAINS. PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23, 1876.

Notice is hereby given that the Fourteen-Foot Bank Light-ship, Delaware bay, was driven from her position on the 20th instant.

Kaighn's Point buoy is out of position, the buoy marking the Horse Shoe Shoal, Deleware river, and the one marking the wreck of the schooner Addie Walton, in Delaware bay, have disappeared.

The light-ship and buoys will be replaced when the condition of the river and bay will allow the buoy-tender to work.

Classic Dandyism.

It was in the heyday of dandyism that young Decluseau first appeared above the horizon. Brum-mei had indeed passed the meridian of impudence, and no rival had as yet succeeded him in notoriety. But there were aspirants to the most conspicuous place in the world of foppery. Tom Duncomb place in the world of toppery. Tom Duncombe starred it in the green room, Henry Mildway on the box seat, and Lytton Bulwer in the last novel. But the hour and the man had not come, for D'Orsay had not yet begun to reign. With him the darsting day of coxcomby reached the climax of affectation and then faded into forgetfulness. Soon after his coming into England Decluseau pere had been of use to D'Orsay in getting him credit with a saddler and wine merchant, and I have heard that Decluseau fits had shown him the way to his first hatter? A choice among tailors was not so easily made. That required deliberation and study of character. At first, I have been told that the Count tried to import a Parlisian cut and color, especially in his neither garments; but the sagacity that distinguished him from all his competitors in folly quickly led him to perceive that to be lord of the ascendant in the Park and Pall Mall, he must be in all things undetectable to the vulgur eye as a foreigner; while incontestably the most exquisitely attired among thee who lounged or ambled up and down among the native born lords of the creation, D'Orsay disdained the tricks and arts by which the less refined practitioners in imposture had been wont to make men stare and women ogie. He remained, indeed, patriotically faithful to the gloves and boots of his country, but in the residue of his garments he was scrupulously English; and his adoption of the plain black frock was in itself a proof of his profound confidence that it was his destiny to rule the coats of men. I have myself seen Pelham, not only in his early, but in his later days, indulge in a combination of tints and hues in the putting on of apparel that would sound fabulous were I to depict it. D'Orsay piqued himself upon being a master in the severer school of classic dandyism. He contended that true art shone in the nirmness of a collar, the expansion of a lappel, the expression of a hat, not in the exaggeration of these articles, which was "gauche and sedy." Everything about him starred it in the green room, Henry Mildway on the box seat, and Lytton Bulwer in the last novel.

A New Invention by Krupp.
Herr Krupp has tested, with what he considers satisfactory results, a new appliance for artillery. The principle is to fix guns of any calibre into The principle is to fix guns of any calibre into armor plates by means of a ball and socket joint at the muzzle. The advantage obtained is the avoidance of the recoil and the retention of the barrel in precisely the same position, to the veriest nicety, so as to render a fresh aim absolutely needless. Moreover, the armor, of course, protects the men serving the plees from hastile fire. They are protected not only from ball shot, but also from grenades, and practically from shrapnel. Meszrs. Krupp addres only cast steel to be applicable to the new igyention.

Dionysious Exiguus mistook the year, and probably the day and the month. As to the year, Christ was certainly born before the death of Herod the Great (see Matt.) Now Herod the Great died in the year of Rome 749 or 750. Some bronologists have attempted to make a nearer pproximation to the year of Christ's birth by the elp of Luke's remark (iii, 2-25) that Jesus was bout thirty years old in the fifteenth year of the about thirty years old in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cassar. Tiberius became sole Emperor, August, in the year of Rome 757. Add the fourteen years of Tiberius' reign, and it appears that Christ was about thirty years of age in the year of Rome 781. But there is some reason to think that Augustus made Tiberius partner in the government two years before, that is, in 765 plus 14. In this case Tiberius' fifteenth year would be 779 of the year of Rome. Now if our Saviour was about thirty years old in the year of Rome 751. If in the year of Rome 759, then He was born about the year of Rome 759, then He was born about the year of Rome 759, then He

OBSERVATIONS ON THE

CATARRH.

Among the list of chronic diseases which affect the human frame Catarrh is the one most prevalent, most offensiv most productive of discomfort, and most liable to a variety of dangerous and distressing complications.

Thousands are annually hastened to a premature grave from its, pernicious effects, and no doubt consands are at this moment slowly perishing inder its fatal influence, ignorant of the cause of their declining health. It was, in fact, the destructive influence of this disease and its alarming prevalence that first attracted the [writer's attenion, and it is with pardonable pride that he refers to the fact of having been the first physician who made this disease a special study, and originated a system of treatment calculated to effect a radical

Catarrh manifests itself by a discharge from the head, varying in its nature in different cases, and even in the same individual at different times. It may be a thin, coloriess, acrid fluid, or a giary, starch-like substance; generally, however, it is a thick, purulent, or murco-purulent matter, either greenish-yellow or a deep green tint, occasionally streaked or flecked with blood. So copious and offensive is the discharge in many cases that the patient feels as though the whole head was in a state of corruption.

throat of collects as a tough, viscid phiegm behind and above the soft palate, in the passage between the throat and head, creating a constant and almost irresistible desire to obtain relief by "hawkng, " practice characteristic of catarrh, and a embarrassing to the one affected as it is disagreeable to those around. Often the phlegm is so tenaious that the most persistent and exhaustive efforts fail to dislodge it until some food or stimulant

Again the offensive matter deposits itself in the nasal cavities in the shape of dry, hard crusts, which, in some cases, accumulates to such an extent as to form a regular plug, obstructing breathtion is indicative of ulceration, which in time may destroy the bony structure of the nose and produce

The breath is always tainted, and sometimes is as revoltingly offensive as to render the sufferer an obcases are occasionally met with in which the stench is really overpowering, and sufficiently fetid to poison the atmosphere of a whole room. Thus a person affected with Catarrh lives continually in an impure atmosphere of his own surrounding, and inhales a poisonous effluvia with every breath.

Again a distressing feeling of fullness or compression is experienced above and between the eyes, or pain manifests keelf in the face, forehead or temples, or on the top or back of the head, sometimes of so severe a charac ter that it is mistaken for neuralgia. The sense of smell is generally blunted or entirely lost, and taste

The voice is husky or of a nasal character, while oftimes there is a continual hoarseness, accompa nied by more or less cough, excessive debility and maciation. Indeed, in some instances the loss of esh is so considerable and progressive as to suggest the existence of tubercular disease, and not a few cases of Catarrh that have come under my notice have been regarded as consumption, and se

Catarrh is one of the most frequent causes of deafness. Scarcely any one afflicted with this disease for any length of time retains a normal acuteness of the hearing power. With some the hearing suffers at first only by spells, while in others the hearing grows indistinct without the appearance of ing gradually until all juseful hearing is lost, Noises in the head of every conceivable description often add materially to the existing distress.
